Vote Early For McKinley Pugh.

About haif past 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon Albert Beli, Eliza Haley and Mary Haley started out for a rida. They were coming down Market street toward Fourth when their horse became unruly. The vehicle struck a cuivert crossing, the occupants were thrown out and the forewheels and shafts followed the horse down Market. Nobody hurt; but the buggy has gone to the shops. The outfit belonged to Coughlin Bros.

"buys too much." Thet is a different story. Can any workmen swallow it! In the Fifty third Congress Bryan championed "cheapness." Wa then had the gold standard, Protection, pienty of business, good wages and good prices. Today he deprecates cheapness and ascribes it to the "Crime of 1878."

In the Fifty-third Congress Bryan favored free wool. Protection was withdrawn. Wool has failen from 28 cents to 13 to 14 cents. This low price, he now says, is dua ta the gold standard.

BRYAN TO THE WOMEN.

It is a strange thing that a presidential candidate who is avowedly advecating a polley looking to an increase of something like 80 per cent in the prices of all the necessities of life, about deepect to win the women of the United States to the support of his candidacy. In his speech at Minneapolis to "women only." Mr. Bryan had much benefited by a change to a depreciated aliver standard, but he did not explain to them how they or their families would be benefited by a change to a depreciated aliver standard with its inevitable high prices. In most homes the women are the purveyors. To them is intrusted the duty of cachanging the husband's the duty of cachanging the husband's the duty of cachanging the husband the duty of cachanging the husband to be a supplied of the duty of cachanging the husband with the duty of cachanging the husband with a niterasted and watchful eye. And the woman never lived who wan of delighted when she could make a dollar go further to-day than yesterday. There was a speech made incher the womans a natural and proper low for womans a natural and proper low for the proper supplied to the good and will be to be real objection to the gold dollar is that it is togod and will buy too much, continued thus:

Which Has Dropped?

Mr. Foras computes that wheat would try the same equivalent of corn and tosis in 1874 as is would in 1893; that it would buy more of allver, therefore all-were has not depreciated but gold has appreciated. Admitting that these prices of two carefully selected years are criterions, if it were anything but allver about which men were discussing a client part of wheat, corn and outs have been nearly uniform; therefore, their prices have not varied; whereas the demand and supply of silver from the cotangue has failen.

The question is, therefore, has the dropping of silver from the cotangue has failen.

The question is, therefore, has the dropping of silver from the cotangue values of "it and 30, and it are two values" of the results of the first proposition; there is little room for discussion in regard to the sire.

Rarely does it happen that the most familiar work of a well-known artist, seen by millions of people and recog-nised every where in the elvitised world, goes without the in not thought of by more than a most thought of by more than a handful of pople as his drawing, says the New York Mail and Express. Yet this is the case with a creation of no less a person than corged out Maurier, and the artistic work in question is the picture of the bubbling spring which decorates the label of every bottle of apollinaris water.

That the author and illustrator or "Trilly" should have drawn the design on a mineral water bottle may seem strange, but the explanation Mr. Du Maurier has himself given. A great friend of the artist is a principal stockholder in the Apollinaria company, and when the water was first placed on sale
he was in doubt as to the style of label.
Mr. Du Maurier heard of the dilemms, and at once volunteered to draw the design, which has since made the eiouti of the globs.
